■■■■■■■■■:For the Old town lovers, this is an excellent investment opportunity of . 70 square metres distributed in three levels. In the ground floor we find in lounge and a toilet. The kitchen-dining room located in the second plant. The bedroom in suite we will find it in the third one, from the bedroom one accedes to a small terrace. Many people don't realise that Marbella is actually also a very Spanish town. This gives it a more cosmopolitan air, with a sense of cool rather than tacky glitz. The back streets of the old part of town are beautiful. Tiny pretty little cobbled lanes, leading to the central "Orange Square", have old bougainvillea plants trailing off their walls, little boutiques and some excellent authentic restaurants, tapas bars, street cafes and funky late bars.
